Profile

I am a proactive, versatile, ambitious young man with a huge passion for technology, football and Data Science. Currently I'm working as data analyst and in the field of football I've been writing articles for my blogs and also for newspapers and I'm also collaborating with football consultant Proscout, producing scouting reports.

I consider that I have good analytical skills, problem solving, support and decision making, project management and teamwork.

I'm looking for an opportunity where I can apply data science assisting enterprises by supporting data-driven decision-making and I believe that this position can be the perfect fit for both sides.
